

Asset Protection Planning

SettlePou's Health Law group advises physician practices regarding appropriate asset planning measures that can be taken to protect practice assets from the various business and malpractice risks that exist. The Health Law group evaluates the structure of the practice and, after evaluating the particular issues of the practice, advises whether the business risks can be separated or the assets better protected through another business model. The group then designs, builds, and implements the new business model for the practice with the practice's accountants and other advisors. The Health Law group additionally has experience evaluating and, if appropriate, working with various insurance and lending products offered to protect practice assets (typically accounts receivable).
